STORM SWEEP STATE CENTER, ONE MAN KILLED

SEVERAL HURT, HEAVY DAMAGE TO CROPS, PROPERTY

THREE HAIL, WIND AND RAIN
STORMS RAGED ON THURSDAY

HAIL STONES AS BIG AS LEMONS
FELL IN THE ST. PAUL AREAS

St. Paul, June 28.—(UP)—One dead, several injured and thousands of dollars damage to crops and property was revealed today by a check-up over the trail of three hail, wind and rain storms that swept through this section of central Minnesota late Thursday.

The only death reported was in St. Paul and was caused when Harry Latourneau, 28 years old, picked up a power wire as he cleared the street of rubbish in front of his fiancée's home. He was instantly killed.

Several persons were injured here and widespread damage caused by a hail storm that followed a downpour of rain and in turn was followed by a windstorm of near-cyclonic proportions. Hail stones as big as lemons covered the streets in one section of the city, smashed thousands of window panes, damaged motor car tops and ruined gardens.

Truck farms in the neighborhood of St. Paul and Minneapolis were irreparably damaged but the greatest destruction was wrought by the hail upon the corn, wheat and oats crops. The small grains, just beginning to head out, were beaten into the ground and the corn stalks and leaves were ground into bits.

TALE OF MURDER IN HOTEL LOBBY

Laredo, Texas, June 28.—(UP)—A tale of murder in a hotel lobby and of hiding the victim's body in the Rio Grande was written into the records of criminal district court here today where the trial of Thomas Hernandez and Raymond J. West, Laredo peace officers, is under way.

The men are charged with murder in the slaying of Harry Williams, Muncie, Ind., newspaper man, who until his death was a reporter on the Laredo Times.

The state is attempting to prove that Williams was choked to death in the lobby of a local hotel on the night of January 18 after he and a companion had refused to join the defendants on a party.

GLANCING BLOW SHUNTS PLANE AND KILLS TWO

Riverside, Calif., June 28.—(UP)—Lt. William G. Plummer and Cadet C. T. G. Wallace were killed instantly today when their airplane was struck by a glancing blow by another plane which was taking off from March army field.

The plane occupied by the two men killed was struck on the tail by the wing of the other army ship and was so close to the ground when the mishap occurred that the two fliers could not use their parachutes. The second plane was not damaged.

WOMAN BANDIT COMMANDEERS CAR, GETS $14,000 CASH

Topeka, Kan., June 28.—(UP)—A woman bandit forced a man motorist to drive her to the offices of the Security Benefit association here today, held up an official of the organization and escaped with $14,000.

She got the money from W. L. Stalons, clerk, after running up to him and warning, "Drop that bag or I'll blow your insides out."

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh are at St. Louis Today

St. Louis, Mo., June 28.—(UP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, quartered in one of the leading hotels here, were understood today to be planning a two or three day stopover here on their trans-continental survey flight. They arrived here at 8:25 p. m. last night after a flight from Indianapolis, posed for pictures and then sped away to the hotel.

Wausau, Wis., June 28.—(UP)—Fire still smoldered in the ruins of the Cereal Flour Mills plant here today after burning more than six hours and virtually destroying the mill at a loss of more than $250,000.

More than 60,000 bushels of grain were lost.

Naval Reduction Developments Coming Too Fast

GLADYS BROCKWELL BELIEVED DYING FROM INJURIES

Hollywood, June 28.—(UP)—Gladys Brockwell, long a favorite of the films, was believed dying in a hospital here today from injuries she received when an automobile in which she was a passenger plunged over a 75-foot embankment.

The accident occurred near Calabasas late last night. Miss Brockwell's body was terribly crushed, hospital attaches said. She suffered fractures of the skull and pelvis.

Miss Brockwell was in pictures for many years as a star and more recently in support of male players.

CAPT. HAWKS TAKES OFF FOR NEW YORK CITY

LEAVES LOS ANGELES TO COMPLETE
ROUND TRIP RECORD SOUGHT

MADE WESTWARD FLIGHT IN 19
HOURS, 16 MINUTES, 32
SECONDS

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles, Calif., June 28.—(UP)—Capt. Frank Hawks began another assault on the trans-continental flight records at 3:37 A. M. today when he took off for New York.

Hawks yesterday established a record of 19 hours, 16 minutes and 32 seconds in a flight from New York to Los Angeles.

Capt. Hawks landed shortly after 8 P. M. yesterday. His time bettered by nearly five hours the previous record for the trans-continental trip, established by the late Capt. C. B. D. Collier and Harry Tucker.

Hawks' Lockheed-Air Express plane was delayed on the return trip when it was discovered the right streamline cowling of the plane had been cracked.

Mechanics worked feverishly getting the plane in shape for the return flight, while Hawks slept on a cot at the airport. Shortly before 3 A. M. he was awakened and advised the plane soon would be ready for the return trip.

A few minutes later Hawks climbed aboard the Lockheed and started warming it up. Then he started down the runway, taking off after a short run.

He circled the airport once and then sped east, the lights on his plane vanishing in a few seconds as the plane roared away after another record.

FORMER KAISER'S VIRTUAL EXILE NEARING END

EXPIRATION OF DEFENSE OF THE
REPUBLIC LAW ON
JULY 22

REICHSTAG IN HEATED DEBATE
REFUSED TO PROLONG
LAW

Berlin, June 28.—(UP)—The former kaiser's virtual exile from Germany will come to an end in a few weeks with the expiration of the defense of the republic law on July 22.

The Reichstag, in one of the most heated debates of the year, early today refused to prolong the law. The sponsors of the measure were defeated by a vote of 263 for prolongation to 166 against. Two-thirds of the votes were necessary to pass the bill.

The nationalists put up a stubborn fight against the prolongation of the law, principally, it was believed, because of the so-called "kaiser paragraph." The fascists and communists, as well as members of the economic party, voted against the bill.

The nationalists opposed the measure, Von Lindeinerwilsau, one of the party leaders, said, to defeat the discriminatory legislation against the former ruler, restoring him at least to the privileges of ordinary German citizens.

Moreover, he added, it will remove the stigma which the law hitherto affixed to the one-time emperor.

2 Endurance Flights Come to Grief Today While 2 Others Strive to Break Record

ASHCRAFT IS KILLED, PLANE CRASHES IN TREE

BLINDING RAINSTORM FORCES
DOWN 2 ENDURANCE FLIERS
AT CLEVELAND

JOHNSON AND HAUGHLAND CONTINUE
FLIGHT AT MILL CITY,
PASS 126TH HOUR

(By United Press)

Two endurance flights came to grief today while two others continued efforts to break the existing refueling mark of more than 172 hours and Capt. Frank Hawks sought to add new trans-continental speed records to the one he made yesterday.

Jack Ashcraft and Miss Viola Gentry who took off from Roosevelt field on an endurance flight at 8:45 P. M. yesterday crashed their plane against a tree at Old Westbury, L. I., this morning. Ashcraft was killed and Miss Gentry injured.

A blinding rainstorm forced two endurance fliers to earth at Cleveland early today. They took off last evening.

Thorwald Johnson and Owen Haughland were past the 129th hour in their assault on the endurance record at Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jensen and William Ulbrick continued flying above Roosevelt field, having been up more than 36 hours at mid-morning.

Captain Hawks, who yesterday bettered the existing record by flying without stop from New York to Los Angeles in 19 hours, 16 minutes and 32 seconds, started out from Los Angeles at 3:37 A. M. PCT on a return trip seeking to set a new speed mark.

Three men were killed late yesterday when an amphibian plane fell into the water near Beach Haven, N. J.

Old Westbury, L. I., June 28.—Jack Ashcraft, veteran pilot for whom hair-raising "dead stick" landings were too tame, met death today trying to effect an ordinary landing in a fog.

The Cabinair plane in which he and Miss Viola Gentry took off from Roosevelt field at 8:45 o'clock for an endurance record, ran out of gas, crashed against a tree and came to rest on Hicks' nursery grounds here.

Miss Gentry, one-time woman's endurance record holder and known as "the flying cashier," suffered fractures of both arms, severe bruises and shock and may have been injured internally.

Minneapolis, June 28.—Shortly after 2 P. M. today the Miss Minneapolis dived by the 129-hour mark on the long road toward a new endurance flight record, the objective but 46½ hours away. Owen Haughland and Thorwald Johnson apparently enjoyed the cool cloudy weather as they lazed over the Twin Cities but there still was a threat of rain.

Roosevelt Field, L. I., June 28.—The plane Three Musketeers dived over this field today in quest of a new refueling endurance record. At 10:02 A. M. the three persons aboard—Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jensen and William Ulbrick—had been in the air 38½ hours.

At 9:30 A. M. Jensen dropped a note asking "what has happened to Viola? Am worried."

Field attendants did not inform him immediately that Viola Gentry, seeking a record in another plane, had been injured and her co-pilot killed in a crash shortly after 6 A. M.

FISHBEIN SUED IN HALF MILLION LIBEL SUIT AT CHICAGO

Chicago, June 28.—(UP)—Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, has been named defendant in a $500,000 libel suit, filed by the Oranold Tooth Paste company. The suit charges Dr. Fishbein attacked the company's product in a series of syndicated articles.

ENDURANCE FLIGHT OF WOMAN ENDS; CRASHES INTO TREE

Old Westbury, L. I., June 28.—(UP)—Miss Viola Gentry's Cabinair plane, in which she was attempting to establish an endurance record, crashed into a tree at Hicks' nursery grounds early today and was wrecked. Jack Ashcraft, co-pilot, was instantly killed.

Miss Gentry was rushed to the Nassau hospital at Mineola. Physicians there said she had a chance for recovery.

CANADIAN CUSTOMS MEN SEIZE EIGHT MOTOR BOATS

OWNERS FAILED TO REPORT AFTER RETURNING TO THEIR DOCKS

DID NOT CONFORM TO DOMINION
CUSTOMS REGULATIONS

Detroit, Mich., June 28.—(UP)—Canadian customs men seized eight motor boats owned by United States liquor runners at the dock of the Atlantic Export Company at LaSalle, Ont., near here, it was revealed today as U. S. prohibition forces continued their drive to stop smuggling across the Detroit river.

Orders for the seizure came direct from W. D. Euler, minister of customs for the Dominion of Canada. While officials of neither government would admit the move predicted a co-operative effort to stop rum running, the seizure was looked upon with interest by United States officials.

The boats were seized because their owners failed to report to Canadian customs officials after returning to their docks as required by Dominion customs regulations.

Additional seizures are expected.

IOWANS DRINK THEIR NEAR BEER UNMOLESTED

LAWYERS CONTINUE WRANGLING OVER LEGALITY OF CONFISCATION

10 CARLOADS OF BEVERAGE CON-FISCATED SATURDAY AT DES MOINES

By JOSEPH S. HEARST
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Des Moines, June 28.—Iowans drank their near beer unmolested today as lawyers continued wrangling over legality of the confiscation of 10 carloads of the beverage here last Saturday.

The hearing to determine whether malt drinks, regardless of alcoholic content are barred under the state's prohibition code, as John B. Hammond, veteran dry crusader, insists, was to be resumed today before Municipal Judge E. Merchon.

Angus McLaughlin, counsel for the Chicago & Northwestern railroad was to press his demands that the police trundle back to the yards the shipment they confiscated as Hammond gleefully looked on.

McLaughlin contends the cargo, advertised as the "greatest shipment of beer ever sent in the middle west," was an interstate consignment and the state had no right to touch it—at least until it was delivered.

McLaughlin drew numerous laughs in the crowded court room yesterday through his sallies against Hammond whom he likened to Don Quixote. He compared Hammond's fight against near beer to the Spaniard's tangles with windmills.

Representatives of the Manitowoc (Wis.) Brewery Products Company which sent in the shipment, near beer retailers and ordinary near beer drinkers were all in court, as were representatives of reform organizations.

GERMANY SHOWS BITTERNESS AGAINST VERSAILLES TREATY

Berlin, June 28.—(UP)—German bitterness against the Versailles treaty on the tenth anniversary of its signing today culminated in demonstrations and fighting in the streets of Berlin.

Students, who had been forbidden by the police to engage in public demonstrations, nevertheless marched through the streets shouting, "Down with the Versailles outrage," "Down with the swine republic," and similar cries.

After a mass meeting against the Versailles treaty, held back of the Berlin university, 4,000 students marched to the Prussian ministry of education and demonstrated.

SHARP DIVISION IN MAINE OVER WET AND DRY

U. S. SENATOR ARTHUR R. GOULD
ISSUES STATEMENT
TODAY

DEFENDS HIS RIGHT TO HAVE,
MAKE, DRINK LIGHT WINES
AND BEER

Portland, Me., June 28.—(UP)—A sharp division in Maine political circles over the wet and dry issue appeared probable today as a result of United States Senator Arthur R. Gould's statement defending his right to have, make and drink light wines and beer.

The junior senator—from Maine—expressed his views on prohibition after an attorney for a St. Louis grape juice concern had made public a letter in which Gould stated he had obtained "some very fair results" with the company's product.

In a statement issued from his Presque Isle home, the republican senator, who is 76 years old, indicated he was surprised that the letter revealed in St. Louis should cause widespread interest.

"Everybody who knows me knows that the sentiment relating to prohibition as expressed in that letter are my sentiments," he said.

Residents of his section of Maine used grapes and elderberries in making wine for home consumption, he said.

"God Almighty put these flowers on the earth, and he intended them to be used," declared Senator Gould. Senator Gould said he expected to be a candidate to succeed himself in the primaries next June.

Storm clouds gathered on his political horizon a few hours after he had expressed his views on prohibition. Although he voted against the Jones law, his firm stand in favor of light wines and beer created consternation in some quarters.

Captain C. Underhill of the coast guard radioed all ships at sea that he and his men had "the situation well in hand."

Twelve more men remained aboard the stricken ship but little fear was expressed for their safety. The Hartwood, Captain Underhill reported, was fast aground.

The rescue was accomplished as a 38-mile an hour gale sent the waves dashing against the freighter's sides.

INSOFAR AS AMERICA IS LINKED WITH IT

PRESIDENT HOOVER MAY APPLY
A BRAKE, IT IS
HINTED

ACCELERATION REVEALED SINCE
MAC DONALD AND DAWES
CONFERRED

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, June 28.—London developments in the world's progress toward discussion of naval reduction are coming too rapidly for the linking of the American government and President Hoover may apply a brake, the United Press learned on the highest authority today.

The acceleration with which the situation has developed since the meeting in Scotland between Premier MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes has aroused apprehension here lest the forthcoming conference be jeopardized under circumstances which wrecked President Coolidge's 1927 conference in Geneva.

After that conference failed there was general agreement that its troubles had arisen from lack of preparation. Part of President Hoover's strategy in launching his naval reduction program last April was to allow ample time to other governments for consideration of his suggestion. The suggestion was that "reduction" should be substituted for "limitation" as the world's goal.

Mr. Hoover's program was progressing according to schedule until the case of naval reduction received a tremendous impetus from the success of the labor party in the British general election.

Since Dawes' arrival in London, some developments have surprised and somewhat alarmed officials here, the United Press is informed. It was not expected, for instance, that Mr. MacDonald would announce an intention to reveal plans of a naval conference within a few days.

MacDonald's plans are not known here but there is some feeling that to summon a conference now, prior to an agreement on technical aspects of the problem, would be premature. Whether it would jeopardize the ultimate success of the naval reduction program was said to be a matter of opinion.

It is understood this government would prefer to follow Mr. Hoover's original program, but the decision rests with Mr. MacDonald.

FORMER KAISER'S VIRTUAL EXILE NEARING END

EXPIRATION OF DEFENSE OF THE
REPUBLIC LAW ON

REICHSTAG IN HEATED DEBATE
REFUSED TO PROLONG
LAW

Berlin, June 28.—(UP)—The former kaiser's virtual exile from Germany will come to an end in a few weeks with the expiration of the defense of the republic law on July 22.

The Reichstag, in one of the most heated debates of the year, early today refused to prolong the law. The sponsors of the measure were defeated by a vote of 263 for prolongation to 166 against. Two-thirds of the votes were necessary to pass the bill.

The nationalists put up a stubborn fight against the prolongation of the law, principally, it was believed, because of the so-called "kaiser paragraph." The fascists and communists, as well as members of the economic party, voted against the bill.

Senator Gould said he expected to be a candidate to succeed himself in the primaries next June.

Storm clouds gathered on his political horizon a few hours after he had expressed his views on prohibition. Although he voted against the Jones law, his firm stand in favor of light wines and beer created consternation in some quarters.

16 OF CREW OF LUMBER CARRIER ARE RESCUED

HARTWOOD GOES ON ROCKS OFF POINT REYES, NEAR SAN FRANCISCO

COAST GUARD SURF BOAT PICKS
UP PART, LEAVES 12
ON SHIP

San Francisco, Calif., June 28.—(UP)—Sixteen members of the crew of the lumber carrier, Hartwood, which went on the rocks off Point Reyes, 75 miles from here late yesterday, were rescued by a coast guard surf boat early today.

Captain C. Underhill of the coast guard radioed all ships at sea that he and his men had "the situation well in hand."

Twelve more men remained aboard the stricken ship but little fear was expressed for their safety. The Hartwood, Captain Underhill reported, was fast aground.

The rescue was accomplished as a 28-mile an hour gale sent the waves dashing against the freighter's sides.

INSOFAR AS AMERICA IS LINKED WITH IT

PRESIDENT HOOVER MAY APPLY
A BRAKE, IT IS
HINTED

ACCELERATION REVEALED SINCE
MAC DONALD AND DAWES
CONFERRED

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, June 28.—London developments in the world's progress toward discussion of naval reduction are coming too rapidly for the linking of the American government and President Hoover may apply a brake, the United Press learned on the highest authority today.

The acceleration with which the situation has developed since the meeting in Scotland between Premier MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes has aroused apprehension here lest the forthcoming conference be jeopardized under circumstances which wrecked President Coolidge's 1927 conference in Geneva.

After that conference failed there was general agreement that its troubles had arisen from lack of preparation. Part of President Hoover's strategy in launching his naval reduction program last April was to allow ample time to other governments for consideration of his suggestion. The suggestion was that "reduction" should be substituted for "limitation" as the world's goal.

Mr. Hoover's program was progressing according to schedule until the case of naval reduction received a tremendous impetus from the success of the labor party in the British general election.

Since Dawes' arrival in London, some developments have surprised and somewhat alarmed officials here, the United Press is informed. It was not expected, for instance, that Mr. MacDonald would announce an intention to reveal plans of a naval conference within a few days.

MacDonald's plans are not known here but there is some feeling that to summon a conference now, prior to an agreement on technical aspects of the problem, would be premature. Whether it would jeopardize the ultimate success of the naval reduction program was said to be a matter of opinion.

It is understood this government would prefer to follow Mr. Hoover's original program, but the decision rests with Mr. MacDonald.

MUST PAY DAMAGES FOR STARTING BRUSH FIRE THAT SPREAD

St. Paul, June 28.—(UP)—The state supreme court decided today that Theodore Klement, farmer who resides near Remer, Cass county, must pay to John B. Sorum, a neighbor, $2,250 damages for losses caused by a brush fire alleged to have been started on the Klement farm in 1918.

FAMILY QUARREL ENDS IN MURDER

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 28.—(UP)—Abraham L. Lawrence, 46, shot and killed his wife, probably fatally wounded his 22-year-old daughter and then killed himself as the culmination of a domestic quarrel in his home here today.

Police believed the argument resulted from a discussion of the Lawrence family finances.

GRANT PERMIT TO OPERATE TRUCK LINE

St. Paul, June 28.—(UP)—The state railroad and warehouse commission today granted L. C. Lein and Elvin Benson to operate a motor truck freight line from Winona to Harmony and the Liederbach Bus Co., Buffalo, permission to run a passenger line between Minneapolis and Kimball.

TO DO BUSINESS IN SMALL LOANS

St. Paul, June 28.—(UP)—The Citizens' Loan & Investment Co., St. Cloud, today was granted permission by the state banking department to open its doors for business. The concern will do business in small loans.

Farmers Picnic and Market Day
at Pine River

GIVEN FINE HOSPITALITY

Band Receives Contract to Play Two Days at Wadena County Fair

The American Legion Auxiliary
Band returned last evening from Pine River where they gave two concerts yesterday at the Land O' Lakes
Creamery Association farmers picnic and market day. The local Auxilliary band gave one concert in the morning and one in the afternoon.

The program was held in the spacious armory at Pine River instead of out of doors as was originally planned, on account of inclement weather.

A large number were in attendance at the picnic, and a community picnic lunch was served at noon. The members of the band spoke highly of the hospitality accorded them by the Pine River folk, and reported a very pleasant day.

The band has now received a contract to play two days at the Wadena fair.

Food sale will be held by the la-

THE CHAUTAUQUA

The local American Legion Post has evinced its interest in community affairs in many ways, not the least being the sponsoring of the Chautauqua season in Brainerd. This is high class entertainment which carries an educational appeal. The Chautauqua has been referred to as the "tent university."

The purpose for bringing the Chautauqua has not been a mercenary one. It has had the broader purpose of giving to our local people an opportunity of seeing and hearing the best talent at a nominal cost.

There is, of course, the permanent body of our citizens that does not have to be instructed or appealed to concerning Chautauqua attendance and they are well represented among the season ticket holders.

The Chautauqua committee addresses an appeal to those who have seldom or never visited a Chautauqua. One visit will convince these people that it is a worth while entertainment, and that it should be worthy of generous support.

JUNIOR TOWN PARADE

"Such brilliant costumes have seldom been seen in a children's parade," Bobby Cohen, reporter for Junior Town sponsored by Chautauqua officials writes concerning the parade in which 60 boys and girls took part yesterday afternoon.

He writes that Mary Hagberg, mayor of Junior Town was dressed as a young man and that she lead the parade. He further describes Robert Patterson in the costume of a tramp, Robert Holden as a "colored gentleman," Jean Hagberg and Vivian Dougherty in dresses that grandma used to wear.

Bobby also tells about the Junior Town meeting this morning when Robert Patterson gave a talk on "Why We Have Laws" and Lucille McLaughlin gave the rules of Junior Town.

Camp Clearwater, June 26.—A large number of scout parents and friends visited Camp Clearwater today. They were: Mr. Nelson, Mrs. Odenthal, Mrs. Larson and Mr. and Mrs. Erickson, all of Brainerd; Mrs. Hale and Mrs. Adams of Deerwood; Mrs. Hoban of St. Paul; and Mrs. Keeler and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Van Evert of Crosby. We wish to repeat what we have stated before; that visitors are welcome at Camp every day.

and at any convenient time during the day.

Ribbons are awarded each day to the patrol whose cabin and grounds rates highest upon inspection. Today Cabin No. 4 won first place with a score of 109, which is a perfect score. The members of Cabin 4 are: Dave Garceau, patrol leader, Beria Magoffin, Morton Magoffin and Irving Steinfeldt. On Monday Cabins Nos. 2 and 4 were tied for first place. Members of Cabin No. 2 are: James Van Evert, patrol leader, Baxter Smith, Nicholas Kniekerbocker, Kenneth Burns, Paul Hale, Arthur Martinetto, Crofton Anderson and William Van Evert. Cabin No. 4 won the ribbon on Tuesday. In scoring the cabins orderliness, cleanliness, and general appearance are factors taken into consideration.

The instruction period this morning was spent in giving the boys first aid knowledge in relation to swimming and life-saving. Various caries and lifts were demonstrated, and also a method of artificial respiration.

All Scouts desiring information as to camp, should report to their scoutmaster for that information. Since Mr. Bakken will be at camp during the next few weeks, there will be no opportunity to get information at the Brainerd scout office during camp.

Attention is called to the fact that the camp court of honor, for the first periods camp, will take place Friday evening, June 28. A cordial invitation to attend is extended to all.

Talk to our Goodyear users hereabouts—they'll tell you how these tires stand up on our roads and how they hug the road when it's slippery. It's because Goodyear Tires, the world over, average far better service, that last year's Goodyear sales showed a bigger increase than the sales of all makes of tires combined. Yet there's little difference in the price of a Goodyear and the cheapest tires you can get anybody to sell you. With tire prices so low, why not have the best?

SCHMELING DOES EVERYTHING EXCEPT K. O. UZCUDUN

PIERCES ARMS, ELBOWS DEFENSE OF PAOLINO

UNCORKS SLASHING PUNCHES TO HEAD OF THE BASQUE WOODCHOPPER

CUTS LATTER'S FACE TO RIBBONS, HAS HIM BLINDED AT FINISH

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, June 28.—(UP)—Max Schmeling made good!

The 23-year-old German heavy-weight did everything but knock out Paolino Uzcudun, the stout-hearted Basque, in a 15-round bout at Yankee Stadium last night and today shared with Jack Sharkey of Boston the role of leading contender for the vacated heavyweight throne.

Piercing Paolino's arms and elbows defense with slashing punches to the head, Schmeling cut the Basque's face to ribbons and had him blinded, bleeding and groggy at the finish.

Most of the crowd of 48,000 roared its approval of the black-haired Teuton terror as he left the ring unmarked and fresh as a daisy.

An injury to Schmeling's right hand in the fifth round probably saved Paolino from the first knockout of his career. The German hurt his hand when a punch landed on Paolino's elbow and was unable to get the full power behind his dynamite right during the last 10 rounds.

Never in recent history has a heavy-weight been beaten as badly as Paolino and remained upright for 15 rounds.

Paolino left the ring in worse shape than did Tom Heeney after Gene Tunney had scored a technical K. O. over the New Zealander challenger last July.

He was farther gone than K. O. Christener when Referee Lou Mazzonella stopped the semi-final in the ninth round, awarding Otto Von Porat of Chicago a technical knockout over the veteran Akron, O., rubber puddler.

Schmeling's short, straight chopping punches beat down Paolino's defense and left him wide open. The Basque was bathed in blood when he collapsed to his seat after the final bell.

In the praise for Schmeling, Paolino's courageous stand during the last two rounds is apt to be overlooked. Game to the core, Paolino stood up under a relentless and merciless attack when he was virtually defenseless.

Schmeling unleashed the full fury of his attack in the last six rounds and won all of them by a decisive

FIELD AT WINGED FOOT IN PURSUIT OF JONES

MADE WONDERFUL MARK OF 69 IN HIS FIRST ROUND

ATLANTAN DROPPED 4 STROKES TO PAR ON FIRST THREE HOLES

THEN GUNS FOR EAGLES, GETS TWO, AS WELL AS THREE BIRDIES

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 28.—The field at Winged Foot took up the pursuit of Bobby Jones today.

The picturesque little suburb known as Mamaroneck, accustomed to the sight of its commuters pounding determinedly after the 7:45 as it pulls out, may have found nothing ludicrous in the spectacle.

The difference is that sometimes a tardy commuter catches the 7:45.

With a 69 for his first round, representing his best effort in any national open championship in which he has participated, Bobby Jones sat back at his ease today and watched the chase with a calculating dispassionate eye.

Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 28.—Gene Sarazen and Al Espinosa were tied for the lead in the van of the field at Winged foot today with aggregates of 142 at the half way mark.

The two professionals, closely pursuing Bobby Jones who led the field in the first round, both played steady and, at times, brilliant golf.

Sarazen added a 71 to his 71 of yesterday, while Espinosa had a par 72 to join the 70 he shot Thursday. This pair left Bobby quite a mark to shoot at, despite his 69 on the opening day, for a high wind was blowing over the west course at mid-day.

Jones was not due to go until 2 P. M. at which time most of the field in the national open would have completed the second round.

The Glencoe pro had trouble at the short holes on the inside nine, dropping three strokes to par on the one-shotters.

He was in trouble at the tenth and took four, while at the short 13th he needed two to reach the green and three putts to get down. Aside from that, Espinosa's golf was perfection. His card:

Out ..... 344 453 345—35

In ..... 444 534 454—37—72

Sarazen's card:

Out ..... 444 444 255—36

In ..... 445 243 553—35—71

The little Italian-American was in trouble some of the time, but was recovering well and putting brilliantly, needing only 12 putts on the inside nine.

Denny Shute of Worthington, O., who shot a 73 yesterday, broke par today and added a 71 for an aggregate of 144, which put him up with the leaders.

Shute negotiated three birdies on the outside nine and turned 35, one stroke under par. He stood an iron up to the pin at the tenth for a fourth birdie, but dropped one stroke to par at the difficult 15th. He came home in 36, par figures, for his aggregate of 71, equalling Sarazen's effort today.

Shute's card:

Early in the afternoon, the sky was overcast and a strong wind swept across the fairway, promising trouble for the late starters including Bobby Jones, Leo Diegel and Tommy Armour.

Larry Nabholz of Houston, Texas, who was well placed at the end of the first round with a 74, went to pieces today in the wind and took an 81 for an aggregate of 155.

The first 60 and ties were to qualify today for the last two rounds tomorrow. Walter Hagen, with his aggregate of 157, the result of an 81 today, was expecting that all those breaking 160 would survive.

Hagen, British open champion, practically eliminated himself from further consideration today. The gallery stayed with "The Hag" despite his downfall, but he failed to justify the tribute.

Hagen's card:

Out ..... 544 444 545—39

In ..... 555 443 754—42—81

Rain began to fall, swirling across the fairways on the wings of a high east wind, as Bobby Jones teed off.

The chances of the late starters were slender under the sudden change of weather conditions at Winged Foot.

PIERCES ARMS, ELBOWS DEFENSE OF PAOLINO

UNCORKS SLASHING PUNCHES TO HEAD OF THE BASQUE WOODCHOPPER

CUTS LATTER'S FACE TO RIBBONS, HAS HIM BLINDED AT FINISH

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, June 28.—(UP)—Max Schmeling made good!

The 23-year-old German heavyweight did everything but knock out Paolino Uzcudun, the stout-hearted Basque, in a 15-round bout at Yankee Stadium last night and today shared with Jack Sharkey of Boston the role of leading contender for the vacated heavyweight throne.

Piercing Paolino's arms and elbows defense with slashing punches to the head, Schmeling cut the Basque's face to ribbons and had him blinded, bleeding and groggy at the finish.

Most of the crowd of 48,000 roared its approval of the black-haired Teuton terror as he left the ring unmarked and fresh as a daisy.

An injury to Schmeling's right hand in the fifth round probably saved Paolino from the first knock-out of his career. The German hurt his hand when a punch landed on Paolino's elbow and was unable to get the full power behind his dynamite right during the last 10 rounds.

Never in recent history has a heavyweight been beaten as badly as Paolino and remained upright for 15 rounds.

Paolino left the ring in worse shape than did Tom Heeney after Gene Tunney had scored a technical K. O. over the New Zealander challenger last July.

He was farther gone than K. O. Christener when Referee Lou Mazzolla stopped the semi-final in the ninth round, awarding Otto Von Porat of Chicago a technical knock-out over the veteran Akron, O., rubber puddler.

Schmeling's short, straight chopping punches beat down Paolino's defense and left him wide open. The Basque was bathed in blood when he collapsed to his seat after the final bell.

In the praise for Schmeling, Paolino's courageous stand during the last two rounds is apt to be overlooked. Game to the core, Paolino stood up under a relentless and merciless attack when he was virtually defenseless.

Schmeling unleashed the full fury of his attack in the last six rounds and won all of them by a decisive

FIELD AT WINGED FOOT IN PURSUIT OF JONES

MADE WONDERFUL MARK OF 69 IN HIS FIRST ROUND

ATLANTAN DROPPED 4 STROKES TO PAR ON FIRST THREE HOLES

THEN GUNS FOR EAGLES, GETS TWO, AS WELL AS THREE BIRDIES

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 28.—The field at Winged Foot took up the pursuit of Bobby Jones today.

The picturesque little suburb known as Mamaroneck, accustomed to the sight of its commuters pounding determinedly after the 7:45 as it pulls out, may have found nothing ludicrous in the spectacle.

The difference is that sometimes a tardy commuter catches the 7:45. With a 69 for his first round, representing his best effort in any national open championship in which he has participated, Bobby Jones sat back at his ease today and watched the chase with a calculating dispassionate eye.

Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 28.—Gene Sarazen and Al Espinosa were tied for the lead in the van of the field at Winged foot today with aggregates of 142 at the half way mark.

The two professionals, closely pursuing Bobby Jones who led the field in the first round, both played steady and, at times, brilliant golf.

Sarazen added a 71 to his 71 of yesterday, while Espinosa had a par 72 to join the 70 he shot Thursday. This pair left Bobby quite a mark to shoot at, despite his 69 on the opening day, for a high wind was blowing over the west course at mid-day.

Jones was not due to go until 2 P. M. at which time most of the field in the national open would have completed the second round.

The Glencoe pro had trouble at the short holes on the inside nine, dropping three strokes to par on the one-shotters.

He was in trouble at the tenth and took four, while at the short 13th he needed two to reach the green and three putts to get down. Aside from that, Espinosa's golf was perfection. His card:

'SUNNY' ALBANY WINS NATIONAL MARBLE TOURNAMENT

Ocean City, N. J., June 28.—(UP)—Before a crowd of 3,000 and with every shot broadcast over a national hookup, Charles "Sunny" Albany of Philadelphia won the national marble tournament today.

Albany completely outclassed Michael Bathe of Akron, O., winning five straight games in what was scheduled as the best five out of nine. The scores were 3-4, 11-2, 7-6 and 3-5.

SPEED HOLMAN TO BE AT AIR MEET

Noted Stunt Flier at Brainerd Air
Meet Saturday, Sunday,
July 20, 21

AT ROSKO AIRPORT

Northwest Airways, Inc., to Send Super Tri-Motored Plane
to Meet

The first response received in regard to the Brainerd Air Meet, set for Saturday and Sunday, July 20 and 21, to be held at the Rosko air field, has come from the Northwest Airways, Inc., of St. Paul, who wired J. O. Engel, in charge of the round-up:

"Confirming our agreement we will have one of our super tri-motored planes at Rosko airport July 20 and 21 for display and passenger carrying purposes. Also Speed Holman will be there to do stunt flying."

A popularity contest will be conducted at the time of the air meet with prizes awarded in the shape of substantial air cruises, round trips from Minneapolis to Chicago and return.

Assurances of all kinds are pouring in that the air meet will be an outstanding success. Cooperation is being gained in all quarters, not alone in Brainerd and vicinity but from the large airplane manufacturers and selling agencies of the cities, the noted fliers, both stunt and passenger, airplane publications, etc.

Brainerd will gain widespread publicity and the cause of flying, of linking Brainerd on aerial routes, etc., will be given tremendous impetus.

Speed Holman, outside of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, has the greatest drawing power of any aviator. His acceptance of the invitation to be at the air meet in Brainerd starts off preparations with a bang.

Lieutenant Walter Bullock, noted air mail pilot, will fly again at Brainerd. Years ago he was in the employ of Captain William H. Fawcett and gave stunt exhibitions at Brainerd and elsewhere.

So many things are being planned in the way of air races, air exhibitions, displays of planes and accessories, etc., that daily reports will be necessary to fully inform the public of the many things offered.

The stamp of approval was set on the field two weeks ago when the Lockheed Vega representatives of Detroit, Mich., tried out the field and made perfect landings and hop offs with their large five-passenger plane. They carefully studied the runways, ample for the largest passenger planes; viewed the markers, caretakers' house, and conferred about the many improvements to come and said the field was a wonderful example of private initiative and deserved the support of the public, whether air-minded or not.

PRIVATE PEAT RAPS WAR HERO WORSHIP

Suggests That Monuments be Made for Finest Farmers, Teachers,
Carpenters, Etc.

HOPE LIES IN TEXT BOOKS

Tells Audience at Chautauqua Tent
That There's no Sportsmanship in Modern War

If Private Harold Peat, world writer, lecturer, had his way there would be few monuments erected to soldier heroes and many monuments to the finest farmers, teachers, carpenters, stone masons.

He told a large audience at the Chautauqua tent last evening that when a country goes to war it follows its natural impulses, youth pictures hero worship, and when a war is wanted no causes are necessary to start it.

Private Peat attacked modern war methods as being unsportsmanlike and said that if modern machinery and science were banned and men fought it out on the battlefield instead of having high powered guns and aircraft kill women and children miles behind the lines he would say that war was not so terrible after all.

"I hate modern war because there's no sportsmanship, modern war machinery and science has made it a butchering game," said Peat, who really is not a private but a captain.

"The hope for the boy lies in the text books," this authority on war said, "teach the boys and girls the horror of war instead of the glory of it, tell of the suffering of the nations in the text books and there will be less desire on the part of peoples to go to war."

The speaker painted a picture of the horrors of war as he saw them as soldier in the first Canadian regiment that went to France in 1914. He told of the reactions of soldiers to the war. He described hand to hand battles with the enemy. He told of wholesale slaughter by both sides. It was a truthful story, terrible in its gruesomeness.

Private Peat said that even at this late date he still was unable to find out the cause of the World war.

"The peoples of the world had been taught to react to war and when it came there was no thought of cause, they followed their own natural impulses. The world was ready for war and the world went."

"Causes for war the world will always have but all of these causes can be settled without going to war about it. Teach the children to love peace and hate the thought of war and there will be no wars," he said.

He said he would not encourage total disarmament as the army and navy are as necessary to the state as a police force is to a city.

Private Peat is known throughout the world as a "one man league of nations" tracing his ancestry to include many of the nations of the world. He is of slender build but with a dominating courage as shown by his war record.

He is an engaging speaker, has perfect control of his facial and hand expressions and delivers a lecture with an ease and grace that is enviable. He knows conditions in the majority of countries of the world, and his articles on war and abandonment of war have been read by millions of people.

Previous to Private Peat's address the John Ross Reed Co. presented a delightful sketch, parts of "The Desert Song." Tonight the company will appear in "Skidding," a popular stage production recently released in New York.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LVIII.

DAPHNE glanced miserably out of the glass telephone booth, saw Ralph waiting with exaggerated patience, hands in his pockets . . . she couldn't leave him to telephone again. . . . "Could I leave a message for him?" she began all over again. "Certainly," Mrs. Colby bridled, at the other end of the wire. "Then will you please tell him," Daphne said timidly, "not to send the car back for me, because I'm not going straight home—" "Tell him what?" "Not to send the man—" "I thought you said that! You'll have to speak more distinctly, Miss Heinz, I don't know what man you want. There isn't any man here. Is someone coming? What's that? I don't hear you—" In the end she had to give up. "I'll just have to be back at the building to tell the chauffeur not to wait, that's all," she decided, but it wasn't so easy to break the news to Ralph. He ordered a marvelous dinner. A special salad, steak and mushrooms, all the things she liked. He smiled at her across the table, admiring her, noticing all the little things, things she had always wanted him to notice and he never had before. "Pretty hat, Daphne." The old blue hat she had bought to please him last Summer. That had been invisible to him before. Her fingers flew to it instinctively. A little pat. "Do you really like it—it's old now—" "Yes, blue is your color, isn't it?" She wished she had a whole blue outfit. But her pleasure was marred by the furtive glances she couldn't help giving to her wrist watch. Five minutes past six. Six o'clock. Five minutes past six. The waiter brought the steak with a flourish. "Shall I serve, sir?" Ten minutes past six before he was finished, and gone. "This is something like!" Ralph grinned. "Sauce, Daphne? Remember the first dinner we had together? At the hash-house down by the ferry?" Did she remember? Could she ever forget? And she leaned forward, her eyes dark with excitement, shining with unshed tears. "Of course, I remember, Ralph," and Ralph, I'm afraid I'll have to hurry tonight, because Mr. Greely is sending his car back for me at half-past six, and the chauffeur won't know what to think if I'm not there—" "So he sends his car for you now?" "Not all the time!" she laughed, and her voice sounded unnatural, even to her own ears. "Just tonight because I was going to be late. Just the one night I met you!" "Don't let that embarrass you," he said coldly. "I'm not surprised. It's more generally known than you think."

He stared at her coldly, inimically. Like a stranger. "You don't think that Mr. Greely . . . that Mr. Greely . . . Oh, Ralph!" He continued to watch her, a strange gleam in his eye. "Come," he said, "Don't make a scene. Of course, people talk. What do you expect, with Greely's reputation?"

"You don't think that Mr. Greely . . . that Mr. Greely . . . Oh, Ralph!"

Don't pretend you don't know all about the woman he's had!" "At eight! Oh, Ralph! And even if he is like that, you don't suppose I'm one of them, do you?" The idea was so ridiculous. . . . Mr. Greely, with his cuss words, and his cane, and his congress boots. . . . Her first hurt indignation melted! Mr. Greely!!! She couldn't be angry. "It's so f-funny!" she giggled, the tears in her eyes. "Ha, ha!" he laughed with her. "Ha, ha! It is funny to anyone who knows you as I do, Daphne. But it looks bad to others. Darn bad. That's what I was going to talk to you about tonight. I've got to thinking about it, and I see I made a rotten mistake, taking you to his office that way. I had a little run-in with him this morning. From now on it's likely that there will be no love lost between us. You'll have to quit, Daphne. Right away—that's flat."

She blinked at him, wondering if she heard aright. "Why, I couldn't quit if I wanted to. Not just now, anyway. I'm doing special work." Allan's work . . . work that might be worth thousands of dollars to Ralph. . . . to Ralph, who had stood the loss for his friend. . . . "Oh, you don't understand Mr. Greely!" she burst out explosively. "He's thinking about your interests all the time—" "Cut that!" he ordered sharply. "No soft-soaping me. ously. "You feel differently about it, when you've cooled down. He roars a lot, but he'd do anything for you—" "Are you going to quit, or aren't you?" # Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LVIII.
DAPHNE glanced miserably out of the glass telephone booth, saw Ralph waiting with exaggerated patience, hands in his pockets . . . she couldn't leave him to telephone again. . . . "Could I leave a message for him?" she began all over again.

"Certainly," Mrs. Colby bridled, at the other end of the wire. "Then will you please tell him," Daphne said timidly, "not to send the car back for me, because I'm not going straight home."

"Tell him what?"
"Not to send the man—"

"I thought you said that! You'll have to speak more distinctly, Miss Heinz, I don't know what man you want. There isn't any man here. Is someone coming? What's that? I don't hear you."

In the end she had to give up. "I'll just have to be back at the building to tell the chauffeur not to wait, that's all," she decided, but it wasn't so easy to break the news to Ralph.

He ordered a marvelous dinner. A special salad, steak and mushrooms, all the things she liked. He smiled at her across the table, admiring her, noticing all the little things, things she had always wanted him to notice and he never had before.

"Pretty hat, Daphne."
The old blue hat she had bought to please him last Summer. That had been invisible to him before. Her fingers flew to it instinctively. A little pat. "Do you really like it?" she asked.

"Yes, blue is your color, isn't it?"
She wished she had a whole blue outfit. But her pleasure was marred by the furtive glances she couldn't help giving to her wrist watch. Five minutes to six. Six o'clock. Five minutes past six. The waiter brought the steak with a flourish. "Shall I serve, sir?"

Ten minutes past six before he was finished, and gone.
"This is something like!" Ralph grinned. "Sauce, Daphne? Remember the first dinner we had together? At the hash-house down by the ferry?"

Did she remember? Could she ever forget? And she leaned forward, her eyes dark with excitement, shiny with unshed tears.
"Of course, I remember, Ralph . . . and Ralph, I'm afraid I'll have to hurry tonight, because Mr. Greely is sending his car back for me at half-past six, and the chauffeur won't know what to think if I'm not there."

"So he sends his car for you now?"
"Not all the time," she laughed, and her voice sounded unnatural, even to her own ears. "Just tonight because I was going to be late. Just the one night I met you!"

"Don't let that embarrass you," he said coldly. "I'm not surprised. It's more generally known than you think."

Her hand flew to her throat. "What's more generally known? What do you mean, Ralph?"

He stared at her coldly, inimically. Like a stranger.
"You don't think that Mr. Greely . . . that Mr. Greely . . . Oh, Ralph!"
He continued to watch her, a strange gleam in his eye. "Come," he said, "Don't make a scene. Of course, people talk. What do you expect, with Greely's reputation?"

"You don't think that Mr. Greely . . . that Mr. Greely . . . Oh, Ralph!"

Don't pretend you don't know all about the women he's had!"
"At eight! Oh, Ralph! And even if he is like that, you don't suppose I'm one of them, do you?" The idea was so ridiculous. . . . Mr. Greely, with his cuss words, and his cane, and his congress boots. . . . Her first hurt indignation melted! Mr. Greely! She couldn't be angry. "It's so f-funny!" she giggled, the tears in her eyes.

"Ha, ha!" he laughed with her. "Ha, ha! It is funny to anyone who knows you as I do, Daphne. But it looks bad to others. Darn bad. That's what I was going to talk to you about tonight. I've got to thinking about it, and I see I made a rotten mistake, taking you to his office that way. I had a little run-in with him this morning. From now on it's likely that there will be no love lost between us. You'll have to quit, Daphne. Right away—that's flat."

She blinked at him, wondering if she heard aright. "Why, I couldn't quit if I wanted to. Not just now, anyway. I'm doing special work."

Allan's work . . . work that might be worth thousands of dollars to Ralph. . . . to Ralph, who had stood the loss for his friend. . . . "Oh, you don't understand Mr. Greely!" she burst out explosively. "He's thinking about your interests all the time—"

"Cut that!" he ordered sharply. "No soft-soaping me. It's a fight to a finish from now on. You can't be friendly with both camps. You'll have to choose."

Still she refused to take it seriously. "You feel differently about it, when you've cooled down. He roars a lot, but he'd do anything for you—"

"Are you going to quit, or aren't you?"
She saw he meant it then, and her temper, violent as it was, rose to meet his. "Quit! Of course I'm not going to quit? You failed me the night my father died. You've always failed me . . . and then you pushed me aside for Crystal—"

For Crystal . . . what was she saying? Talking to him like a jealous woman . . . accusing him . . . showing him she cared. . . . Tears blinded her, tears of humiliation. She clenched her shaking hands in her lap, staring at her plate, too proud to brush the brimming tears away, hating him, hating herself, hating everything. And his voice came, thick with anger. "Accuse me! That's good. When you double-crossed me for Allan—that crook—that jail bird—"

"For Allan?" She hadn't meant to answer. The words just slipped out.
"You heard me. Didn't you go to Greely's the pair of you? Didn't I lend my car for the day? Yes, like I've been lending him things ever since I first set eyes on him. School books. Sweaters. Money. Everything! And then you. Do you think I was blind? And now Greely . . . it makes me sick. I'm getting so I don't trust anybody any more. Greely, my father's friend—"

She got unsteadily to her feet, pushed back her chair. She even managed to struggle, unassisted, into her coat. As she walked through the maze of white-covered tables, past black-coated waiters who seemed to be lunging at her with trays, she thought she could hear Ralph's voice still. Snarling. Snarling at her whom he used to love.
